HOME EVENTS.

The Daily Cases.

There were six attachments and twelve replevin cases known as the Daily cases, all growing out of the Daily failure. It was agreed between the counsel in the case to try all the cases involving replevin, but not attachment together. Shackman & Company was represented by A. H. Ellis of Beloit, E. L. McDonald was represented by Judge Pratt, and the Sherman County Bank by E. F. Murphy of Goodland, Wilson and Scott of Oberlin. Shackman & Company replevined a certain invoice of goods of the Sherman County bank and E. L. McDonald & Company replevined these goods from Shackman and company. The Sherman County bank came in as an inter-pleader and was represented in the case to the extent of $1,257 all told, and in the appeal from Judge C. W. Smith decision will only have to give bonds for about $2,500, the statutory provision. The case occupied about a week, and was long, tedious and intricate one. We suppose the judge conscientiously discharged his duty as he understood the case, and we have no reflections to cast on anyone. In our dealings with the Sherman County bank, we have found Mr. Tomblin one of the most accommodating and fair dealing of our business men. The complications were intricate and the case difficult.

Resolutions of Respect.

Castle Hall, Eustis lodge, No. 21, Knights of Pythias, Goodland, November, 26, 1891.

Whereas, The sad intelligence of the death of our lamented brother, J. A. Dougherty, which sad event occurred at Republican City, Neb., on November 23, 1891, again reminds us that we are born to die therefore be it Resolved, That we, of Eustis lodge No. 21 Knights of Pythias bow submissively to the will of an alwise Providence, we mourn his loss and do cherish his memory. In the death of our brother we lose a worthy Knight and his family a loving father.
